NUMEROUS complaints have been made recently of the sale of oysters on the wharves by short measures, and Mr. Sutton, the Harbormsster, and James Smalls, the Soaler of Weights and Measures, have been endeavoring to break up this class of swindling. On Tuesday they arrested James Williams, the captain of an oyster-boat, who was salling oysters on the wharf from a half-busnel measure, which was found to be an inch too short. The man was taken into custody and left 55 collatoral, which he forfeited in the Police Court to-day.

WM. SHEFFERD, an old countryman, pleaded guilty in the Folice Court to-day to the embezilement of $45 from Mr. John Henderson, a resident of Prince George's County, Md. Henderson testified that he entrusted a cow to Shepheri to drive to this city to sell, and that Shepherd brought the cow here, sold it for $45, and then got on a spree and spent the money. Sergeant Swindell, the acting lieutenant of the West Washington Station, testified that he purchased the cow for $45 from Shepherd, who represented himself, to be its owner. Judge Snell held the prisoner for the action of the Grand Jury.

The Sabbath-school entertainment at the Ninth-street Methodise Protestant Church, between E and F streets, on last Friday was largely attended and gave universal pleasure. The cantain in all its parts was facely executed, the beauty of the young laddes engaged in it adding much to the interest. The gentlemen who represented the Frost King and Santa Claus won the verdict "Well done," while the little children caught many admirers. Mrs. Dorinda Curry, who superintended the rehears and had the general management of the cantain, and Mr. George Hartwell as musical director, are to be congratulated upon its successful rendering.

The Tragedry signt, at Stanuton. Va.

The Tragedy at Stannton. Va. On Tuesday night, at Staunton, Va., John i Burner, of Woodstock, Shenandosh County, Va., general agent of the Frick Engine Conpany, of Waynesboro', Pa., and woll know throughout that section, was Intally shout under the most painful and aggravated circum stances. Burner was slitting in the room of woman named Fannic Lewis reading a bool the most painful and aggravated circumstances. Burner was sitting in the room of a woman named Fannie Lewis reading a book, when a friend of the girl, George Amiss, of Staunten, a baggar agent on the Valley Radicad, knocked at the door, demanding admittance. This boing refused, he kicked open the door and rushed in, using violent and threatening language. Upon Burner approaching the door and attempting to go out, Amiss after striking him, put a pistol to his head, which he knocked down, but the pistol went out, shooting Burner in the right side. Amiss then attempted to shoot again, but Burner begged him to let him go, saying he was shot. The wounded man then put on his overcoat and walked up to the Virginia Hotel, some two hundred yards, accompanied by Lelia Lester and another woman of the house. Physicians were summoned, but nothing could be done for the reiner of this wounded man, who died yesterday afternoon about 30 clock.

Shortly after his death Mr. Burner's wife, brother and two children arrived at Staunton on the Valley train, and the scone on their entering the dead man's room was heartronding. Amiss and the two women, the only witnesses to the bloody deed, had been committed to jail soon after the shooting, and the circumstances as related have been gathered from the dying man and the women. After the death of Burner, Coroner Harlan at once summoned a Jury, and City Attorney Echols examined the girls, who sattempted to shield Amis by telling a story which alone could not fix the act upon him. The jury, however, brought in a verdict to that effect, and the syddence of the women before the ignry hich alone could not fix the act upon him.
